

I think consumers should have a choice of what channels they should pay for. It's also important that the channel choices be cost-effective. It doesn't make sense to make people pay $40 for the 8 channels they watch, but only charge $10 more to get the other 50 channels that are in a company's standard package. I think cost caps should be in place if possible.